

Lucie Bernroider graduated at the University of Vienna with an M.Phil in Social and Cultural Anthropology. In 2013, she joined the HERA project "SINGLE" on urban change and gendered subjectivities in Shanghai and Delhi at the Cluster of Excellence "Asia and Europe in a Global Context" (University of Heidelberg). Her Ph.D. project at the Cluster's chair for media and visual anthropology explores contested notions of gendered autonomy and access to urban space in Delhi, based on case studies of female singlehood. With a regional focus on South Asia, Lucie's further research interests concern urban space, media anthropology and the study of political violence and social memory. She currently works at the collaborative research centre "Re-Figuration of Spaces" at the Technical University of Berlin.
